Kenya: Mpeketoni

Bishop Emanuel Barbara (said of a terror attack on World Cup soccer fans and children of clergy that killed at least 57 and perhaps more than 100 "the attack began at half past eight in the evening yesterday, when about 50 guerrillas arrived in the center of Mpeketoni, immediately attacking the police station, where they looted the armory and killed a policeman. Then they destroyed an antenna for mobile phones, but fortunately there was another, so I was able to stay in touch with the priests and nuns. Finally, the guerrillas attacked two hotels and stopped passing motorists and pedestrians, asking them whether they were Muslims or Christians. If they were Christians they killed them. As far as we know, so far there have been 48 victims, but it is still not a final toll. The police reinforcements arrived an hour later, when the assailants had fled. Now they are looking for them in the forest. We do not even know where they came from. Some say from Malindi, while others claim they come from Somalia. No group has so far claimed responsibility for the attack, but the modus operandi is that of the Somali Shabaab. Everything was well organized, the commandos knew the city very well")

Archpriest Nikolai Fomenko (UPDATE: described pro-government shelling of the cathedral during the Divine Liturgy "Shelling began at 10 AM during the Liturgy. The parishioners had just started singing "Our Father", when the first volley was fired...When the shelling began, everybody rushed into the church. The cathedral was packed with people; the worshippers were kneeling and praying to God with tears. Several stained glass windows fell from the dome and broke because of the shock wave, and this made the people pray more fervently. The volleys lasted for about half an hour...During the first strike I was just holding the Body of Christ in my hands. It is such a stressed state – you are holding the Sacrament and suddenly such things are happening")

Israel

Ayelet Ronen (general secretary of a Messianic Jewish kibbutz, has closed its wedding hall due to lawsuits from homosexual activists, said “We feel that Yad Hashmona, our village, is just very special. It is the only village of [Messianic Jewish] believers in Israel, and it is really under attack, a serious attack. On the one hand, in Israel we have the Jewish religious people who don’t like us at all. The [ultra-Orthodox] rabbinicals, they hate the believers. On the other hand, you have here the ultra-secular attacking us from the other side [with] the gay community. It’s a very difficult position to be in, and we’re really seeking the Lord to see what will happen”)

Tsuriel Bar-David (kibbutz hotel manager, said “We had to stop all activities related to weddings in our hotel so we won’t be accused of discriminating against anyone, since the law does not accept the fact that we want to keep our biblical values in our business”)
