

Today's Martyrs – January 2015

Thursday January 1, 2015

Nigeria: Gombe, Gombe state

Joseph Kamida Cham (president of Urban Frontiers Mission, wrote in an email “The suicide bomber targeted one of the churches where I worship in Tudun Wada Gombe. There are three churches side-by-side, ECWA Gospel, ECWA 3 and COCIN. COCIN and ECWA 3 are on the opposite side of the road that the bomber took; it is also the only access road into the communities behind the Gombe State University. The road is usually barricaded on Christmas and the New Year’s Day, when the service is going on...The only casualty is the suicide bomber, as he was torn into pieces. He stopped and greeted the Boys Brigade [Boy Scouts] that were stationed at the point alongside the police - after the explosion, the particles affected eight Christians. Two had serious injuries, while others had minor injuries and shock from the blast”)

Nigeria: Baga, Borno state

Fr Patrick Tor Alumuku (UPDATE: reported on the latest Boko Haram attack in which as many as 2,000 people may have been killed "I received a message of the Christians Association of Nigeria, the association of Christian churches in Nigeria, which states that in that area Boko Haram has burned several churches and caused numerous victims. Though it is noted that in general the national media tend to reduce the number of victims not to further inflame the minds...One must bear in mind that the presidential election campaign for February has opened this week. The situation is particularly delicate...When those of Boko Haram arrive in a major city they make no distinction between Christians and Muslims, and the population flees, without distinction of religion. Boko Haram separates Muslims from Christians only in the smaller villages. Next to the combatants from Nigeria, Boko Haram has been strengthened by jihadist members from Libya and Mali. Their goal is to create a caliphate in northern Nigeria")

Fr Timothy Cosmas (UPDATE: described the attack in which hundreds were likely killed and possibly thousands "It was a massacre. Baga was a populated and active town, despite having already been attacked by Boko Haram. The majority of the victims were killed after the Boko Haram militants occupied the multinational force base in the town Saturday [January 3, 2015], which had been recently abandoned by a contingent deployed by Chad...the massacre confirms the incapacity of the government and Nigerian army to stop the Boko Haram advance")

Bishop Oliver Dashe Doeme (UPDATE: said "Boko Haram tried to enter Maiduguri twice last weekend: the first time on Friday 23 and the second yesterday, Sunday 25 January...The guerrillas of Bolo Haram were rejected by the military and the civilian militia that defend the city. The fights were very intense. Boko Haram has lost several men. At the moment the situation in Maiduguri appears calm...We risk seeing Boko Haram conquer the entire north-east before the end of the election [in February]..."

Chris Gray (Principal of Durham Free School, reacted to government inspectors from OFSTED interrogating students and using the replies to withhold government funds and force the Christian school to close: "Several parents complained to me about what they saw as intrusive and deeply personal questioning of their children in the group sessions. It has been reported back to me that children aged 6- 9 were asked whether they knew anything about Diwali and whether they were familiar with the Torah. In addition, I have also heard reports of primary school children being asked if they knew of any boys or girls who thought they were in the 'wrong body'. Another parent has complained to me in writing that her ten year old daughter was asked if she knew what lesbians did. Pupils were embarrassed and surprised to be asked questions about sexuality...It is now well known that the manner in which inspectors questioned our pupils in November was hostile, inappropriate and raises serious safeguarding issues. OFSTED's approach to us was negative at every stage, as if the data collected had to fit a predetermined outcome...The questioning by inspectors makes clear that their idea of a balanced curriculum is for us to force pupils to celebrate non-Christian religious festivals. This would breach our Christian foundation which stipulates that we are a Christian school")

John Denning (chairman of governors at Dunham Free School, said "The school is in the process of taking legal advice and will take whatever action necessary to protect the interests of its pupils and their families")

Simon Calvert (Christian Institute, commented on the government agency OFSTED's hostility to Durham Free School and Grindon Hall Christian School: "The government's 'British values regime' is twisting OFSTED's priorities out of all proportion. Inspectors are asking all kinds of invasive questions and then issuing reports that the parents whose children attend the school don't recognize")

Archbishop Nemuel A Babba (UPDATE: called for a "stronger global Christian voice against the Boko Haram violence...Arewa and Shall-Holma dioceses are the most severely affected; the bishops had to move out of the diocesan headquarters two months ago. Like thousands of other displaced people, we don't know when they can go back. Many Lutheran churches and institutions including the Gombi and Arewa cathedrals have been burned down or pillaged. Around 50,000 of our members in Arewa and Shall-Holma had no organized Lutheran worship for the Christmas and New Year seasons because of the violence...As Christians we have also made the government aware that we see Christians as being specifically targeted by Boko Haram. This is not to deny that Muslims are being attacked and killed, but Christians suffer the highest casualties")

India: New Delhi

John Dayal (UPDATE: wrote "India's Prime Minister, Narendra Modi, does not like to be told that he, his government, his political party or the cadres of his old group, the Rashtriya Swayamsewak Sangh [RSS], have done something wrong...US President Barack Obama made international headlines with his 'town hall' speech in Delhi as he concluded a three-day visit to India for its Republic Day. The speech offered a rather sharp lesson on what makes a country great — not economic progress or military might, but the unity of its people brought about by a shared destiny, the hope of progress among the most marginalized and a sense of security among its religious minorities...But it was the Indian president, the 79-year old Pranab Mukherjee, who delivered a homily that was the strongest caution yet about the threat posed to unity and progress in India from the religious nationalism of the RSS [paramilitaries]...Mukherjee touched on a point that has worried many among those who voted for Modi...This was the increasing cacophony of many in the Bharatiya Janata Party, including several ministers and members of parliament, who were supporting a demand that India mark itself out as a Hindu Rashtra or Nation, and stop appeasing Muslims and Christians. Both minority religious groups are seen as enemies of the nation and the majority...The so-called "Ghar Wapsi", or homecoming campaign, launched by the Sangh Parivar just after the general election to forcibly convert Dalit and Tribal Christians and Muslims to Hinduism was put on hold a week before Obama's state visit. It was never in doubt that the campaign, and violence targeting religious groups, would resume. And resume it did, the day after Obama left India..."

I will die but I will not abandon my flock. I am convinced that the Lord will ask me an account of my commitment, my courage and my hope for this portion of his people that He entrusted to me. I have to admit that there was a time, early in the war when I thought of leaving, but the Lord stood by me, and now at 71 years of age, I feel at least 15 years younger, and I do not fear disappointment and discouragement. I know that the Lord takes care of me and my flock...Christians here suffer because they have lost their homes, their relatives and even their churches. What was the middle class no longer has enough to live on. Everything has been corrupted, especially the press, which no longer tells the truth [but now engages in] a true act of disinformation...Christians are a sort of thorn in the side. Christians are the only ones who have some type of relationship with the West, and are able to uncover the great scam that underlies this war and the many interests that are being protected")
