Events – April 2016

Friday April 1, 2016

Philippines: Kidapawan, Cotabato province

Bishop Ciriaco Francisco (threatened with legal action including church closures for 'harboring' illegal demonstrators, the demonstrators were farmers who had blocked a highway to ask for government aid to survive a drought, also condemned the use of live ammunition on the farmers)

Bishop Ephraim Fajutagana (called on clergy to "open cathedrals and churches to shelter farmers who suffer state persecution")

Auxiliary Bishop Broderick Soncuaco Pabillo (UPDATE: called for those who used force to disperse the farmers to be punished)

Fr Edu Gariguez (later said "If real justice should be served, those found guilty should be penalized")

Sr Susan Bolanio (later said she did not agree with the blocking of the highway but "the violence that erupted must be thoroughly investigated")

Kenya

Leonard Rotich (survivor of the April 2, 2015 terror attack on Garissa University College, said “I lost my closest friends in that attack and I never want to go back to Garissa University again. Many of those that died were the first in their family to go to university, only to return home in caskets. Most families are still traumatized”)

Kenya: Moi University, Eldoret

Christians and others commemorated with a candlelight service the first anniversary of the Garissa University College terror attack in which 147 were killed

James Kazungu (survivor, former Christian Union vice chairman, said “Lighting the candles is our show of love towards our heroes of faith as we reflect back on what happened. We also light the candles to acknowledge the sovereignty of God – He is our light”)

Purity (survivor, said “This time last year I was eight month pregnant and lying under a bed, not daring to move and begging God to save my baby. He did! Though I lay on my belly under the bed for 12 hours, my son survived. I named him Kiama [Miracle]”)

Margie (survivor, said of the murder of two dear friends “God showed me that indeed [they] went into eternal safety with Him in heaven...But I am sad because they left me here, alone”)

Victor (survivor, said “You never said goodbye, you were gone before I knew it...If love alone would have saved you, you never would have died”)

Pastor Boniface O Odhiambo (said “It is always hard to accept the will of God when something terrible and bigger occurs in our lives. Know this: God will remain God in every situation”)

Vietnam: Houng Phuong village, Quang Binh province

Fr Le Nam Cao (described an attack by troops against his church in which three parishioners were injured and decorations torn down, said "It was noon time and most of the men were at work, so only old women and children were at home. Parishioners told me of the crackdown. I told them that I would not go out and they should go home and just let them do whatever they wanted because we had no weapons, so it was not good for us. Some people did not agree, so they fought back against the troops including policemen and soldiers who were well equipped with tear gas, bullets and batons...One parishioner was looking at the scene, and he was detained and beaten by the police while some people got tear gas in their eyes, but they were not in danger. I heard the ones that were seriously injured were treated in the hospital, and the rest just went home. The parishioners took care of bruises and bleeding")

Pakistan: Sheikhpura district, Punjab province

Nazeer Masih (aged 55, disabled real estate agent, son of Nazeer Masih, , husband of Rasheeda Bibi, father of three including Iqbal and Patris Masih, stabbed to death by Muslims for a real estate dispute or a dispute over illegal drug sales to Christian youth [accounts vary], body mutilated, Muslim coworker also stabbed but survived, police refused to file a report)

Rasheeda Bibi (widow of Nazeer Masih)

Patris Masih (aged 35, son of Nazeer Masih, identified his father's body)

Iqbal Masih (son of Nazeer Masih, attempted to file a police report)

Pastor Alfred Azam (said "This is not the first incident of persecution of Christians in our village, local Muslims are always creating problems for our Christian community. Before and after our church services Muslim drug dealers swarm around our church trying to sell drugs to our vulnerable youth. Some drug pushers move around in Christian residential areas and beat young Christians forcing them to take drugs in an attempt to get them addicted. When our older men tell these criminals to leave our young people alone they get killed")

United Kingdom

Victoria Wastenev (occupational therapist in East London, disciplined on July 1, 2014 for praying for the health of a Muslim co-worker despite the co-worker agreeing to her prayer and despite a witness testifying he was pressured into making a statement against her; the Employment Tribunal in London ruled on April 8, 2015 in her employer's favor, said that giving a Christian book to her co-worker constituted "harassing and bullying"; UPDATE: appeal against the Employment Tribunal denied, the judge ruled that the Tribunal had acted reasonably, said "What the Court clearly failed to do was to say how, in today's politically correct world, any Christian can even enter into a conversation with a fellow employee on the subject of religion and not, potentially, later end up in an Employment Tribunal. If someone sends you friendly text messages, how is one to know that they are offended? I had no idea that I was upsetting her. For example, I was sent the following text message by the Muslim complainant: - 'Hope your okay Victoria, your am amazing manager and a wonderful person, I hope you never feel otherwise!! Anyone that can't see that is an idiot, see you tomorrow xx' - I believe the NHS singled me out for discipline because Christianity is so disrespected. Previously a Christian worship service that I set up for patients was closed down, but accommodation for Muslims to practice their faith wholly facilitated and encouraged")

But we heard her cries and saved her. Her clothes were all torn up...We just want justice for my beloved wife")

Rosaline Costa (UPDATE: said "I strongly condemn the attack and rape. As members of a minority, they have become victims. The police refused to file the complaint, saying that they would consult the victim after local elections, months from now. That is totally unethical. [They] are working for the criminals and violating human rights. I condemn the attitude of the local police")

Syria: Qaryatain

Fr Jihad (spoke on the liberation of Qaryatain from ISIL "The residents who have fled, both Christians and Muslims, are afraid. They fear that ISIL may come back again. The swift return of the people is also dependent upon how long the city will remain a military zone. Further, infrastructure such as water and electricity has largely been destroyed. And besides, many residents no longer even live in Syria, but have fled to other countries...The walls of the church are still standing, even though the roof is no longer there. The altar, unfortunately, was destroyed. They also smashed the sarcophagus of St Elian. St Elian is greatly revered by the Christians. Muslims also used to go on pilgrimage to his grave. We want to gather the holy relics and give them a worthy place again. Until the possible restoration of the monastery, the remains could be taken to another place...A great deal more vital than the restoration of the stones and the recovery of the monastery is the reconciliation of hearts")

Ellinor Grimmark (aged 39, wife of Carl Johan, mother of two, refused employment as a midwife because she refused to perform abortions, as of March 6, 2014 has filed a discrimination complaint; reported on November 30, 2015 to have lost her employment appeal in a Swedish court, the court ruled in effect that her rights had been violated but that the maternity clinics right to provide abortions superseded her rights, has been forced to work as a midwife in Norway; UPDATE: has appealed the lower court decision, has been ordered to pay all court costs for the defendant - a municipal maternity clinic - which total approximately US$100,000, will be forced to sell her home if her online fundraising fails, said "Maybe what I consider being the most unfair part is the fact that even though I have never asked for job positions that require abortion-related work, I'm also being banned from working as a midwife in clinics that do not deal with abortions. This fact has been ignored in a major part of the media debate, by the employers, and ultimately by the court...It's considered a problem when somebody disagrees with the current consensus regarding abortion and doesn't want to perform abortions because of his/her conscience. Others may feel questioned about their own actions by this and it creates strong reactions...Freedom of conscience is so important. In the future it will otherwise be difficult for certain groups, e.g. religious, to work within health care. The debate about euthanasia is growing in Sweden [it is not allowed yet] and, just like with abortion, it should be unthinkable to not allow freedom of conscience if this becomes a part of our society...My faith is of course a strong source of courage and strength in this situation. I truly believe in my heart that life is sacred and given by God. This is the view of most Christians worldwide and it needs to be respected")

United Kingdom

Several Christian charities issued a statement that read in part "Requiring churches in England to register before they are legally allowed to help children learn the Christian values our nation was built on is an unjustified restriction of religious liberty. Whether the threshold is 6 hours in any week or higher, the principle of outlawing 'unregistered churches' from teaching children the gospel is an unacceptable overreach of the state...We call on Christians, churches and affected organizations in England to contact their MPs and urge them to oppose these plans"

Andrea Minichiello Williams (CEO of Christian Concern, UPDATE: wrote "Christians teaching biblical truth on Sunday or any other day of the week should not be looked upon as if they are somehow doing something so awful that the State needs to be constantly looking over their shoulder. Christians are not terrorists and should not be treated as if they are")

Colin Hart (Director of The Christian Institute, UPDATE: wrote "Christians are justifiably alarmed at the prospect of OFSTED conducting 'British values' inspections of church youth work. The freedom to proclaim the Gospel, and indeed our wider civil liberties, must be protected, not undermined in the name of 'counter-extremism'")

Mark Jones (wrote "The Lawyers' Christian Fellowship condemns violence and terrorism. We have grave concerns about the proposals, which could be counter-productive to the stated aims and may arguably place the UK in breach of its international human rights obligations")

Nola Leach (CARE Chief Executive, wrote "The Government's plans to empower OFSTED to inspect Sunday Schools and other church activities is simply not the best way to tackle the radicalization of young people. It is a wholly unwarranted undermining of religious freedom. We support tackling extremism, but not in this sweeping, overly broad manner")

Simon McCrossan (Evangelical Alliance Head of Public Policy, wrote "These proposals amount to the wholesale nationalization of youth work and the state regulation of private religious practice, more akin to 'Big Brother' than 'Big Society'. If implemented, there is a real risk churches will feel forced to step back from the valuable services they currently provide to young people across society")

Nigeria: Abuja

The Kaduna state government has proposed a law that would ban 'offensive' homilies, require state licensing of preachers, and ban street preaching under penalty of 2 years' imprisonment

Fr Evaristus Bassey (UPDATE: said “The danger in Nigeria is the manipulation of structures and institutions by strong individuals. Thus, the fear is that even if the proposed bill contains good aims, the proposed restrictions would play into the hands of officials of state who have a hegemonic mentality and would allow them the freedom to persecute one religion in favor of another...Gov El-Rufai, who is quite dogged in the pursuit of anything, given this tool, would pursue ardently both what is good and what may be divisive. We advise that Kaduna state rely on existing laws and existing state instruments of law enforcement to maintain religious harmony in Kaduna state, instead of reinventing the wheel...[separation of church and state would be] severely battered if this bill is pursued in the way it is”)

Nigeria

Bishop Emmanuel Olisa Chukwuma (UPDATE: wrote a press statement concerning the Muslim Fulani attacks that have moved into the south of the country “What happened in Agatu is again being spread to other areas, and this is breeding serious civil war that is very much in breach of peace in this country. We don’t want war, but the way things are happening, if care is not taken, there is going to be another war which nobody can avert. It is either Nigeria must be one, or we disintegrate and go our ways”)

Nigeria: Nsukka, Enugu state

Bishop Godfrey Igwebuikwe Onah (issued a pastoral letter entitled Stop This Madness! concerning the April 25, 2016 attack by Fulani gunmen in Nimbo, wrote "...The news of the attack was soon followed by a flood of human beings fleeing their homes and emptying into the urban center of Nsukka, many of them scantily clad women clutching only their babies. Wailing filled the air as vans brought in lifeless bodies of persons who were slaughtered like animals for the crime of having been found in their homes or on the way to their farms...They burnt the house of one Pastor and from there headed straight to the residence of the Catholic Priest, where they attempted to burn the house but could not, since they did not find any petrol in the car and a motorcycle parked there, in the generator, and in the containers. When their attempt to break into the house also failed, they fired gunshots into the rooms, in an attempt to kill all those whom they suspected were hiding inside. And we are forced to ask: If these men were only herdsmen, why did they particularly single out Churches for their attack?...")
