India

Event: Christian leaders welcomed a court ruling prohibiting electoral campaigning on the basis of religion, but pointed out it left standing a 1995 Supreme Court ruling that Hinduism was not a religion with regard to such laws

Bishop Theodore Mascarenhas (UPDATE: said "The judgment could have been more complete and global had the court pronounced that seeking votes on the basis of the Hindu religion is against the secular ideals of India")

Fr Paul Thelakkat (UPDATE: said "The court's interpretation of Hinduism has today led to demands of homogenization and assimilation of minority communities into the Hindu way of life. What remains to be seen is how will this secularism be implemented when the court itself sees Hinduism as part of secular India")

Fr Savarimuthu Shankar (UPDATE: said "This is going to create more confusion and not going to serve the purpose of a secular and democratic country")

Fr Sebastian Poomattathil (UPDATE: quoted the judge as saying that the police investigation was 'totally negligent')

Arun Pannalal (president of Chhattisgarh Christian Forum; UPDATE: said “The youths arrested and tried for the rape were not the real culprits. They are absolutely innocents. It was an attempt to cover up the crime. So the judgment is not surprising at all”)

Cardinal Oswald Gracias (UPDATE: complained of the "half-hearted attitude of the police”)

India: New Delhi

Fr Stanislaus Tirkey (said of the illegal conversion allegations made by the leader of the RSS paramilitary organization "The allegation is completely false. They do this occasionally. Since elections are nearing they want to divert the attention of the people from real issues like poverty")

Fr Vincent Ekka (said that conversions do occur "But conversion is never done forcefully or in any fraudulent manner", added that the Hindu caste system is to blame "In such circumstances, if people find a religion more meaningful and satisfying, they will naturally move toward it")

Fr Denzil Fernandes SJ (Executive Director of the Indian Social Institute said the RSS paramilitary stance is a "project under which they want to make India a Hindu nation...They rake up the conversion issue to create a Hindu vote bank, to distract people from real problems")

Christians continue to return to their homes after the ouster of ISIL

Fr Sharbil Eeso (aged 72, said "We are not allowed to clear up the mess yet. First, the damage needs to be assessed carefully and documented thoroughly, and that can only start when the city is safe. Last week, a jihadist emerged from the tunnel system which ISIL has built underneath the city. The red brigade of the army immediately shot and killed him: the boy was about thirteen years old")

Yacoob Gewargis Yaco (Member of the Kurdistan Parliament; UPDATE: said "There is a lot of unrest among Iraqi Christians. The Kurds support Iraq in their battle against ISIL and the recapture of Mosul and the surrounding cities and villages. The inhabitants appreciate that, but many of the Christians suspect the Iraqi government of giving the Kurds land in return. The Kurds dig deep canals and build high fences that, according to them, are meant to stop ISIL. In the meantime, the Kurds and the Iraqi government deny being promised territory for support and they assure the Christians that no deals were made about the land. But the canals and fences are not built on Kurdish land, but on the Nineveh plain. Many Christians suspect that this border is not temporary, but the start of a permanent border correction")

China: near the North Korean border

Hwa-Young (aged 40-plus, alias, underground North Korean refugee worker, said “They are still prisoners in a jail called ‘North Korean women’. They don’t know the outside world. Whenever I tell them stories about things happening outside North Korea and north-east China, they cannot grasp what I tell them. They feel like victims all the time. If I give them something, they don’t receive it as a kind gesture. To them, it feels like somehow I’m taking advantage of them...They go to pre-school at about five, but they are still forced to watch public executions. Sometimes friends or neighbors are murdered in front of them. Even when they are older and leave the country, they still experience fear. There is much more freedom here in China, but the women are not safe and continue to live in fear...Most of them have been abused in North Korea and in China. They feel numb, not even feeling the hurt anymore. They grow up in severe poverty, always going hungry. All of them know what it is like to worry about every meal, to eat from the rubbish and beg for food...Sometimes, in our group meetings, I invite them to forgive others. I ask: ‘Do you know any people whom you can’t forgive?’ Everyone knows at least one person”)

But over the last few years people who objected to my defending the Christian faith in public wrote to both Lambeth Palace and Buckingham Palace to try to get the association ended. When I was confronted with these attempts to silence or defenestrate me, my reaction was to ask 'in what way is a priest defending the faith on behalf of a monarch who was Defender of the Faith, incongruous or improper?' ...Because I think it a higher and more compelling duty to speak out on behalf of the faith, than to retain a public honor which precludes me doing so at this time, I resigned my post")

Rezeiky took a blanket and headed to the shed to guard it for the night. At 3am, when my brothers and I returned, we found the door open. Our mother was sleeping but Hanan wasn't in her room. We thought she might be asleep with my sister in-law and woke her, but Hanan wasn't there. We searched everywhere and went to relatives to see if she had gone to them but none of them had seen her...They [the police] promised us many times that they would help return Hanan but they have done nothing. We don't know why they don't help us. Is it because we are Christians, or do they connive with kidnapers to take Christian girls to convert to Islam? We accuse them of apathy and complicity”)

Rezeiky Adly Girgis (said “There was no disagreement between us, she was very happy. She was engaged to a man she'd chosen to be with. They had planned to go and buy jewelry together the following day; and she had just bought new clothes for her cousin's wedding on Sunday”)

Patriarch Louis Raphael I Sako (UPDATE: reported to have criticized any change in U.S. immigration policy that would give precedence to Christians over Muslims "Every reception policy that discriminates the persecuted and suffering on religious grounds ultimately harms the Christians of the East, because among other things provides arguments to all propaganda and prejudice that attack native Christian communities of the Middle East as 'foreign bodies', groups supported and defended by Western powers. These discriminating choices create and feed tensions with our Muslim fellow citizens. Those who seek help do not need to be divided according to religious labels. And we do not want privileges. This is what the Gospel teaches, and what Pope Francis pointed out, who welcomed refugees in Rome who fled from the Middle East, both Christians and Muslims without distinction")

Pakistan: Lahore

The Anti-Terrorism Court exonerated 115 defendants from the March 9, 2013 arson attacks in Johnson Colony [ghetto] in which 125 Christian homes were destroyed for 'lack of evidence', one Muslim leader said "our faith in legal system has shattered. The political leaders of Punjab province and the ruling elite have strong alliances with jihadi groups. There is no justice for minority who continue to be victimized"

Roger Randhawa (Operations Management at Caritas Pakistan Lahore, said "It's a sheer disappointment. The message is clear for us; those who attack minorities and openly preach hate can go spot-free. Perhaps the pictures and video footages clearly showing faces was not enough evidence")

Ijaz Farhat (former President of Christians Lawyers Association of Pakistan CLAP; UPDATE: said "The victims are hijacked by NGOs, many try to flee the country and nobody pursues the case. The Church leaders only visit the day court passes judgments. Christian lawyers are at high risk when taking up cases of minority persecution. Nobody provides us security from the crowd of hundreds waiting outside the court")

Syria: Aleppo

Archbishop Antoine Audo SJ (UPDATE: reported to have criticized any change in U.S. immigration policy that would give precedence to Christians over Muslims "We Christians of Syria and the Middle East do not like any speeches that make differences between us and Muslims when justice, peace and aid to those in need are at stake. Who makes these differences, feeds fanaticism and extremism")
