India: Hyderabad, Telangana state

Kusuma Anjeneya Swamy (aged 47, husband of Sujatha, father of two daughters, engineering professor, Gideons member, verbally attacked by three Hindus for handing out Bibles on January 21, 2017, dragged to a police station, released without charge, collapsed with a cerebral hemorrhage, hospitalized in a coma; UPDATE: reported to have been paralyzed on one side, had been threatened with being burned alive)

Rev Ronald John (State Chairman of the Telangana Christian Joint-Action-Committee; UPDATE: reported to have said "This is a very unfortunate incident. The ultra-Hindu nationalists are taking the law into their own hands [which] is unacceptable. This shows how minorities are being treated in this nation")

Rev M Bhaskar (reported to have said that 10,000 Christians wanted to protest against the abuse of Kusuma Anjeneya Swamy but police cancelled the protest, said "It is unfortunate that the police who are supposed to empower the citizens to exercise their right to protest peacefully [stopped the protest] contrary [to the constitution]. They showed unfair bias [against] Christians")

Timothy Ganupalli (reported to have said "We want to hold peaceful protest rally. Having a peaceful protest rally is not against the law of the land, but what prompted the police to deny the permission for the rally? It is our right")

Iraq: Erbil, Kurdistan

Archbishop Bashar Matti Warda CSSR (UPDATE: temporarily barred from entry to the United States, Congressional hearing cancelled in response, said "I don't know what the president knows about security risks as they relate to the 'countries of concern' and refugees from them...One other thing: Christians and other minorities have been largely ignored by the American government before now, so even if this step had a bumpy start and required clarification, we in Iraq appreciate that an American administration understands that we are here and wants to help the minorities here who have suffered so much...From my perspective in Iraq, I wonder why all of these protesters were not protesting in the streets when ISIL came to kill Christians and Yazidis and other minority groups. They were not protesting when the tens of thousands of displaced Christians my archdiocese has cared for since 2014 received no financial assistance from the U.S. government or the UN. There were no protests when Syrian Christians were only let in at a rate that was 20 times less than the percentage of their population in Syria. I do not understand why some Americans are now upset that the many minority communities that faced a horrible genocide will finally get a degree of priority in some manner...I would also say this, all those who cry out that this is a 'Muslim Ban' - especially now that it has been clarified that it is not - should understand clearly that when they do this, they are hurting we Christians specifically and putting us at greater risk. The executive order has clearly affected Christians and Yazidis and others as well as Muslims. Here in Iraq we Christians cannot afford to throw out words carelessly as the media in the West can do. I would ask those in the media who use every issue to stir up division to think about this. For the media these things become an issue of ratings, but for us the danger is real. Most Americans have no concept of what it was like to live as a Yazidi or Christian or other minority as ISIL invaded. Our people had the option to flee, to convert, or to be killed, and many were killed in the most brutal ways imaginable. But there were none of these protests then of ISIL's religious test. Our people lost everything because of their faith - they were targeted for their faith, just like the Yazidis and others too. Now these protesters are saying that religion should not matter at all, even though someone was persecuted for their faith, even though persecution based on religion is one of the grounds for refugee status in the UN treaty on refugees...From here I have to say, it is really unbelievable. It is exactly this reasoning, that religion should not be a factor at all in American policy, that has resulted in Christians and other minority communities being overlooked by U.S. and UN aid programs")

Pakistan

Aasiya Noreen aka Asia Bibi (aged 52, wife of Ashiq Masih, mother of five including Isham, daughter of Soran Masih, sentenced to death for blasphemy in 2009; UPDATE: Supreme Court hearing to be heard in March 2017)

Wilson Chowdhry (Chairman of the British-Pakistani Christian Association, said in London, United Kingdom: "I met with the First Minister at The Pakistan High Commission last Friday and he has informed me that a trial date for Asia's appeal is sure to be fixed before the end of March. We organized the protests across the UK to galvanize support for Asia in the west. Its clear by the huge numbers of protesters calling for her hanging in Pakistan, that most Pakistani's want her dead. Moreover, the last judge retired from his position after refusing to preside over her case in a court debacle when he stated the reason for the adjournment was a conflict of interest. We want Asia to know the world is following her case and supports her freedom so we have collaborated with partners across the UK to make sure her plight is kept in the international spotlight. Our belief is this is the only way to save her from the fundamentalists who wish to see her dead")

A suicide bombing of a Sufi shrine killed at least 75 including 20 children and wounded more than 200

Fr Paulus Gill (prayed for the victims "We are losing human values. What we are witnessing is the result when religion combines with politics...Shrines have relatively low security due to round the clock visitors. Only dialogue can bring peace with religious fundamentalists, the extremism has crept in our society especially after Islamization by General Zia ul Haq who introduced religious and gender biases in Pakistan's laws. Now we are drowning and it will be long before peace prevails in Pakistan")

Fr Abid Habib (UPDATE: said "We are getting messages and churches will be attacked now. The terrorists may be based in Afghanistan but they are being funded by Saudis. They follow Wahabi ideology which lauds the concept of jihad and urges hatred of infidels. Visiting shrines to them is idol worship")

Archbishop Joseph Coutts (UPDATE: said "It is sad that a Muslim shrine has been attacked in a Muslim country. We feel so helpless. The scourge of terrorism has spread like a cancer. It has long roots in our society. The government or army alone cannot fight it alone. The whole nation should stand united, without discrimination of faith, use all peaceful methods and reject these terrorists. Terrorists lie when they claim to target only government departments and spare public or religious places. Attacks on shrines is a wider problem emerging from sectarianism, terrorism has no borders")

Fr Qaiser Feroz (UPDATE: said "shrines are being targeted simply because they are crowded and people of all faiths visit them especially to listen to devotional songs. The religious fundamentalists only want bloodshed, there is no faith motivation")

India: Kerala state

Fr Paul Thelakkat (UPDATE: reported on activities by the RSS paramilitary organization "The RSS presence in Kerala is widespread, strong and active. Based on their ideology, they are a fascist organization. However, they are not in direct conflict with other communities, except in Kannur district where they are in a violent conflict with Marxists...relations between the RSS, Christians and Muslims have always been peaceful. Kerala has a long tradition of cordial relations between the various religions...The RSS does not want to disturb this model. I think the BJP [the RSS political wing] in this state is different from that in northern India. Here, its political leaders do not offend other religions. Kerala could become a model for the national party. India's future will depend on how the RSS is willing to accept democratic values and respect all religions. Even the Marxist Party, whose ideology was not at all democratic, has changed its attitude over the years and is open to democratic values. This could also happen to the BJP and the RSS")

Congo, Democratic Republic: Malole, Kananga, Central Kasai

Fr Richard Kitenge (said of an attack on a seminary "The militias systematically broke the doors of the rooms and destroyed everything that was inside. They entered the teachers' rooms and burned their luggage")

Bishop Felicien Mwanama Galumbulula (denounced "exceptional violence and unimaginable atrocities against the population")

Fr Richard Muembo (seminary rector, described the attack on the seminary "We never thought that we would become the target of attacks. It happened because militia loyal to the late tribal leader Kamwina-Nsapu wanted to set up their headquarters on the premises of the seminary. We declined and tried to find a peaceful solution through dialogue. Unfortunately, the local authorities chose a military solution to end the conflict. This led the rebels to attack our seminary on Saturday, 18th February. Thankfully, since we had noticed that the situation was becoming very dangerous, we had already gotten the seminarians out. The 77 seminarians, ranging in age from 21 to 27 and originally from seven different dioceses in the country, have suffered terribly. They had to flee for two days, taking only what they were wearing with them. They were taken in by families and had to stay with them for three weeks until they could be moved, which, in some cases, was only possible with the help of the UN mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo [MONUSCO]. The media was informed of this")

Medhat Saad Hakim Hana (aged 45, son of Saad Hana, shot dead, body burned)

Nabila Fawzi Hana (aged 65, widow of Saad Hana, mother of Medhat Saad Hakim Hana and Abeer, witnessed their murders, said “At about 10.30 pm, when we were falling asleep, I heard a loud knocking at the door. It made me tense. My son, Medhat, left his room to see who was there. He opened it and two masked men came into the hall. Without asking any questions, one of them shot my son in the head, instantly killing him. When I heard the gunshots I rushed out of my room barefoot and found him lying on the ground, bleeding from his forehead and nose. I screamed, asking them why they shot him. They told me to leave the house and pulled me outside, telling me to not to speak to anyone or go back inside. I noticed another two masked men were waiting inside a grey car near our house...The men went back inside to find my husband. I heard him plead, 'I'm a sick old man,' but they didn't respond. They shot him twice in the head. Then they came out and asked me if I am a Christian. I said I was, then they asked me what my relationship was to the two men. 'They are my son and husband,' I told them. They asked their names and I answered. One of them was holding a list of many names and when I gave their names, he looked at the list and ticked them off with a pen...They looted the house and put the stolen things in their car before setting the house on fire. They took about 40 minutes. We're the only Christian family on the street. I was alone - none of the neighbors helped me - they heard the gunshots but were afraid to come out. I didn't know what to do. I went back inside and saw the bodies of my son and husband. It was horrific...There isn't a security plan to protect Christians. The men took 45 minutes. Where were the police while they did this? And the vet, Bahgat William Zakhar, who was killed in front of people during the busy hours of the day, while those who killed him walked 300 meters down the street shouting 'Allahu akbar' [Allah is the greatest]. Where was the security? The security failure in North Sinai made those militants target us") Maher Fayez (nephew of Saad Hanam, said "My uncle and cousin were killed in their house. After they killed them, they burned the house and left. All of these killings occurred in 10 days, and the targeting of Copts is constant. We want to be able to live. The country is shutting us up so that the government doesn't look bad and seems to be in control. Any talk of security control is lies...At first, they [the police] would say that they [the Islamists] are outside of the city. How were these extremists, most of whom are young men in their 20s, able to enter the heart of the city which is studded with military, police and intelligence? Palestine: Gaza

Fr Mario da Silva (Brazilian citizen, pastor of the only Latin-rite Catholic church in Gaza, said of his 350 families "The situation in Gaza is hard. After the [2014] war, we received international aid. However, six months later they forgot about us, as if everything had been resolved. Instead, problems remain, like the lack of jobs, gas, water, and electricity. On some days, there is electricity only for three hours. It's cold here and people do not know how to heat their homes. We have no drinking water because what comes out [of the tap] is salty, hence, we have to buy bottled water...People here are starting to think seriously that it would be better to get into another war because then at least there would be aid. It is a sad and terrible thought but it shows how tragic things are. The world pays attention to us only when there is a war...The young people who were authorized to visit the holy sites in Jerusalem and Bethlehem last Easter did not return. They remained in the city where Jesus was born and found a job, laying the foundations for a new life. That is why, here, people want to leave...Christians live mainly with debts, buying on credit from the supermarket and promising to pay later. Christian charities help out by paying off the debts. The jobless are forced to beg and count on the generosity of others...Preserving the Christian faith is the foundation of our social work. We have to give them a decent life. Our attention goes to the sick, the suffering, those in difficulty with this spirit...preserving the integrity of the faith, defending it, and teaching Christians how to live amid hardships and a Muslim majority...upholding Christian values like forgiveness, charity, and fraternal love is hard. That is why Christians here are heroes. They know how to keep the faith in a hostile environment and stand more and more as an example for those, even in the West, who experience dimly and superficially their Christian faith")

Sudan

Rev Yat Michael (UPDATE: said in Juba, South Sudan "In 2014, I travelled back to Khartoum to take up a new assignment with the South Sudan Evangelical Presbyterian Church. Little did I know that Sudan had declared war against Christians. So, I was arrested the second day after preaching in a certain church in Khartoum. That is when I was put in jail that lasted me nine months...[the government fears] that they [Christian ministers] can easily reach out to the Muslims and win them to Christ. They do not allow pastors to reach out to Muslims in Khartoum, Darfur and the Nuba mountains. These are strictly Muslim dominated areas")

Two street preachers arrested on July 6, 2016 were convicted of public order offences, the prosecutor stated "To say to someone that Jesus is the only God is not a matter of truth. To the extent that they are saying that the only way to God is through Jesus, that cannot be a truth", the judge stated that quoting parts of the King James Bible in the context of modern British society "must be considered to be abusive and is a criminal matter"

Mehwish Masih (aged 15, daughter of Babar Masih and Ruqiya Bibi, domestic worker, arrested on December 8, 2016 on allegations of theft of her employer's property after she took unauthorized time off from work for appendicitis, held in house arrest at her employer's home; UPDATE: released on bail in the first week of February 2017, returned home, trial pending)

Babar Masih (aged 48, husband of Ruqiya Bibi, father of Mehwish Masih, arrested on December 8, 2016 on allegations of theft of his daughter's employer's property; UPDATE: released on bail in the first week of February 2017, trial pending)

Shahid Anwar, diocesan coordinator for Justice and Peace, said "Very often this kind of allegations is levelled against Christian domestic workers by rich home owners because they belong to minorities and marginalized groups. Most of the time, the charges are unfounded. Employers do not want their employees to free themselves from their bondage. The daughter was held at the Tariq home and her father was kept behind bars for many days without due process. This family is innocent and very poor. We are providing them with legal aid, and managed to get interim bail at the High Court in Lahore, but we hope that on March 6 the bail will be confirmed. We stand by these poor victims and shall fight until justice is done")
