Congo, Democratic Republic: Kyahemba

Fr Etienne Sengiyumva (killed after celebrating Mass)

Bishop Theophile Kaboy Ruboneka (UPDATE: reported on the murder of Fr Etienne Sengiyumva: "Around 3pm, after celebrating Mass in Kyahemba a circumscription of his parish, Fr Etienne had gathered his collaborators, when an armed man, accompanied by other people, entered the meeting room and killed the priest...it is difficult to say who was responsible of this terrible act. There are different armed groups in our region, at least 15, which cannot be dismantled despite the presence of the regular army and the Blue Helmets of MONUSCO [UN Mission in the DRC]...Fr Etienne is the third priest killed in the area. Investigations on the perpetrators of these deaths never lead to anything. On our behalf, we will do everything to identify Fr Etienne's murderers. In these cases, the witnesses fear for their lives and that of their loved ones and hardly offer useful information...I repeat: in our region there are so many armed groups that it is difficult to understand who commits the action. Here in North Kivu we live in total chaos. The situation in my diocese of Goma, like that of Butembo-Beni, is incredible. We are completely abandoned by everyone, we live only thanks to Providence. I ask the faithful of the universal Church to pray for our region so that they can rediscover peace")

United Kingdom: Scotland

The BBC posted an 'anti-homophobia' video on Facebook that said '[Jesus] saved a lot of time when he died for our crimes, that he would've wasted teaching small minds that love is no sin' and said of women receiving Communion 'But under all that din, it tastes like cardboard and smells like hate'

Bishop John Keenan (condemned the video "It is ridiculing and demeaning the faith of ordinary Catholics especially at a time when Catholics are experiencing more and more abuse and prejudice in Scotland...The BBC has to be careful. It has to ask itself if it has ceased to be a broadcaster in the public interest, and is just promoting particular interests. You cannot imagine it treating any other religion like this")
