Congo, Democratic Republic: Oviri-Okpe, Delta state

Fr Christopher Ogaga (abducted, ransom demanded)

Bishop Paulinus Chukwuemeka Ezeokafor (said of the abduction of Fr Christopher Ogaga "It is unimaginable and foolhardy the demand on the Church to pay for the release of any abducted priests...where would they get the money from? These priests are going around preaching and calling for repentance. Why go after them?...Why go after those working out your salvation?")

Nigeria: Du, Jos South local government area, Plateau state

Simon Dung Zih (described a Fulani Muslim attack on shopkeepers “With my friend, we were coming from Lamingo when we saw a moving vehicle coming from Jos, the vehicle was at very high speed and that gave us concern. We continued moving towards Bukuru, and as we got to Yelwa Club, we received a call from someone, telling us that they were attacked...The person told us that some people driving in a very fast car shot sporadically on people in the community and killed many. We waited for some time before rushing to the scene of the attack, only to discover that several people were killed and some wounded. Those wounded were rushed to a nearby hospital for treatment. When I went back to the scene of the attack the next morning, I counted 12 dead bodies”)

Syria: Hassake province

Archbishop Jacques Behnan Hindo (UPDATE: reported to have criticized the Kurdish governing authority DFNS of trying to oust Christians from the region, said "For years I have been saying that the Kurds are trying to eliminate the Christian presence in this part of Syria. Since the beginning of the year, the local government has already taken possession of about 100 state-run schools and introduced their own curriculum and textbooks. They do not want us to instruct pupils in the liturgical language, Syriac, and they do not want us to teach history because they prefer to drum their own history into the heads of pupils...To date, Kurds make up only 20 percent of the population, but, thanks to Western support, [they] are disproportionately represented in the local government. The West cannot keep silent...You are obligated to bring everything that is happening out into the open and prevent further violations of our rights and further threats to our presence in this region. We have been warning against this danger since at least 2015. They want to oust us Christians to strengthen their own presence") to pray and praise God because our church has been closed. God is everywhere and he listens to our prayers”)

Rwanda: Nyamirambo, Kigali

Esther Umohoza (walks nine miles every Sunday to worship, reported to have said “Life has become hard, especially for Christians in this country. You have to travel for a distance to seek God. But we are not going to give up on seeking God. I pray that the government revises these rules. We need churches to be everywhere so that people can pray freely...We are praying God to change the government’s mind so that they don’t completely shut down churches. We believe no leader can go against God, and if he does so, our country will be cursed”)

United Kingdom

Brian Walker (Scout leader, reported on February 16, 2018 to have been dismissed as a Scout leader after writing a letter to a Scouting magazine questioning the promotion of LBGQTQ and Islamic events relative to Christian events, the letter was not published; UPDATE: reinstated, said “Scouting was started in 1908 by Sir Robert Baden-Powell, based on Christian principles, whilst welcoming those of all faiths and none. Over recent years, I have been concerned that the movement has increasingly promoted Islam above Christianity. Islam is not what has given the scouting movement its inclusive and welcoming nature...The irony is that the Chief Scout is Bear Grylls, an internationally-known Christian who is the figure-head for the Alpha Course - which specifically states that Jesus is the only way to God and that Christianity is unique! Their own Chief Scout believes this, and says this publicly, and yet, when I, as a grass roots member for 52 years, challenge the values in a letter which is not even published, I am silenced and dismissed...I am raising this case as I believe the fundamental values of Scouting are being undermined. Parents need to be made aware of what is happening at the center of Scouting, and will eventually flow out into the local groups. We need to act now to maintain and protect the values on which the movement was based”)

Church leaders responded to allegations that there were plans to destabilize the government

Fr Jerome Secillano (UPDATE: reported to have said "I'm not in the intelligence community, I cannot say if such a plan really exists. This is the assurance I can give you, the church has no part in it")

Auxiliary Bishop Broderick Soncuaco Pabillo (UPDATE: reported to have said the destabilization allegations are "an old tune strongmen use when they land in hot water...in a healthy democracy there should be strong opposition to abuse of power. The opposition is not to be crushed but to be engaged to arrive at best actions for the common good. The church has to speak out and warn the people of the dangers of authoritarianism")

Nigeria

Leah Nathan Sharibu (aged 15, daughter of Nathan Sharibu, student, abducted by Boko Haram in Dapchi on February 19, 2018; UPDATE: still in captivity because she has refused to convert to Islam)

Nathan Sharibu (father of Leah Nathan Sharibu, reported to have said “Unfortunately, since the abduction of our daughter, no government official in Nigeria has contacted us or even let us know the effort the government is making towards the release of my daughter. However, Christians across the world have been supporting us and praying with us. It has not been easy bearing the pains of missing our daughter, but the Lord has been gracious through His unmerited grace to us”)

Rev Yunusa Nmadu Jr (UPDATE: reported to have said “I visited the father and had discussions with him. Her mother too, was invited here at the ECWA headquarters [in Jos], and she had the opportunity to speak to a women’s fellowship group who were attending a conference here. So, we have done what we can do to be with her family in solidarity, as we await the release of Leah...We once again are appealing that the government should speed up the efforts to get Leah released, because it’s torturing to her parents and to all of us who are related to Leah, as she’s still left there as the only girl, the only victim in fact, out of those that were abducted. And you can imagine that the narrative is that [she is yet unreleased] because she is a Christian. This goes a long way not to help the image of the government at this time...We have been trying as much as possible, working with other organizations in and outside the country, to raise the tempo of the campaign for her release. One such organization is Christian Solidarity Worldwide, and the office in the UK marked the 200-days campaign, which was held in front of the office of the Nigerian High Commission [Embassy] in the UK”)

Nigeria: Bolki village, Numan local government area, Adamawa state

Rahab Solomon (later said “My husband and I went to Numan to my pick up our children around 2pm. At about 3pm, while we were on our way back home, we heard that our village was under attack and that three persons were killed. We couldn’t go back home because we were told that our house was burnt. So we came to stay in this camp...The next day [September 14] we called my husband’s brother and he told us that the Fulani chased our people and killed so many of them. Those who tried to run through the river were shot and many who tried to escape through the river, but could not swim, died as well, those who could swim were able to survive. We heard that over 25 bodies were recovered from the river. The exact number of people who died in the attack is yet to be known as the place is still under attack...We were told that the Fulani militants burnt down all our houses, and some women and children who hid in the farms were abducted by the Fulani. We no longer have a place to call home. Right now we are helpless”)

Faraz Ahmed Badar (aged 26, son of Bibi and Badar Masih, hospital manager, reported on September 7, 2018 to have been attacked in Gujranwala with acid over his entire body, hospitalized; UPDATE: died)

Badar Masih (aged 48, father of Faraz Ahmed Badar, said "There was a lot of jealousy at his place of employment, we live in a dog eat dog culture where often Christians become the victims because of their vulnerable status. My son was regularly abused by Muslims who could not stand the fact that a Christian man was in a position senior to them. Our country is bigoted and many most Muslims believe all Christians should be sweepers not managers, they call us 'Chura' a name that means untouchable cleaner...This is not the first time that Faraz was attacked. Only a few months previously Faraz was attacked by another group of unidentified men wearing masks telling that as a Christian he was not fit to lick their boots, they even shoved their boots in Faraz's mouth. They threatened him with death unless he left his employment telling him that his ritual impurity meant he was contaminating the health of 'pure Muslims'")

Bibi (aged 45, mother of Faraz Ahmed Badar, said "I cannot believe my innocent son was killed. He done nothing wrong barring adhering to the Christian faith. Although we heard rumors earlier that there was a planned attack by the Fulani on Pasham and Lau villages, so we did not think they will attack us since we did not receive such messages, but at about 4pm, we heard gunshot sounds. Everybody in the village sought cover and began to run for safety, as the Fulani were shooting and burning houses...The Fulani burnt all our houses. No house is standing right now and we cannot go back to our villages. The Fulani also moved from our village to Ndumusu, from Ndumusu to Yanga, from Yanga to Bolki, and continued their attack, killing more people and burning more houses. They took away our cattle and looted our foodstuff and property and burnt the remaining things they could not take away. Twenty-six people were killed in our village, Gon, while two others were wounded...During the attack, we tried to call security forces but none came to our rescue. We managed to put our families, children, women and old people through the bush and that is how we were able to be saved. Right now we are all scattered. Some of us are still in the bush, taking shelter around Gon north, while some of our families are in Numan and others in other villages...Most people who tried to escape through the river during the attack lost their lives as the Fulani chased them because they could not swim. It is not easy for us right now to find food to eat. We have to go to nearby villages to get food for our survival")

We narrowly survived – I only lost a number of my personal household goods and office items such as laptops, iPads and phones, but precious life remained intact...This second attempted murder defeats human logic, due to the fact that I am guarded by police, unlike in 2011. I had given my bodyguards a day off, and thugs succeeded to break into my home at night without being noticed. I narrowly survived this close attempt on my life, and I must really thank God...What I know is that these attacks are connected to religious extremism and are protected by corrupt leaders paid off by the Muslim community”)
